Guidelines to Practice Under the Fundamental Canons of Ethics

Canon 1.

Engineers shall hold paramount the safety, health and welfare of the public and shall strive to comply with the principles of sustainable development in the performance of their professional duties.

- b. Engineers shall approve or seal only those design documents, reviewed or prepared by them, which are determined to be safe for public health and welfare in conformity with accepted engineering standards.

¹The Society's Code of Ethics was adopted on September 2, 1914 and was most recently amended on July 29, 2017. Pursuant to the Society's Bylaws, it is the duty of every Society member to report promptly to the Committee on Professional Conduct any observed violation of the Code of Ethics.

²In April 1975, the ASCE Board of Direction adopted the fundamental principles of the Code of Ethics of Engineers as accepted by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology, Inc. (ABET).

³In October 2009, the ASCE Board of Direction adopted the following definition of Sustainable Development: "Sustainable Development is the process of applying natural, human, and economic resources to enhance the safety, welfare, and quality of life for all of the society while maintaining the availability of the remaining natural resources."

- c. Engineers whose professional judgment is overruled under circumstances where the safety, health and welfare of the public are endangered, or the principles of sustainable development ignored, shall inform their clients or employers of the possible consequences.

Wisconsin Section History, Organization and Governance

History of ASCE—A Brief Synopsis

Founded in 1852, the American Society of Civil Engineers currently represents more than 150,000 civil engineers worldwide and is America's oldest national engineering society. The following narrative summarizes the history of the Wisconsin Section of ASCE. An appropriate starting point is to examine how the Wisconsin Section fits in to the overall ASCE structure.

Organization and Governance of ASCE

Nationally, ASCE is governed by officers and directors elected from the membership to represent ten geographical areas known as Regions and nine technical specialties known as Institutes. The Wisconsin Section is a part of Region 3, which has a total membership of over 14,000. The Wisconsin Section membership is currently almost 2,000, making it the third largest section within Region 3.

The national President and two directors are elected At-large. Ten directors are elected by regional membership and two directors are elected by Institute membership.

The Wisconsin Section covers the entire state except for six northwestern counties (Ashland, Bayfield, Burnett, Douglas, Sawyer, and Washburn) that are assigned to the Duluth Section. The section comprises four branches corresponding to the four major geographic areas where there are concentrations of members, as shown on the next page. The Southeast Branch is composed of the seven counties in the Milwaukee metropolitan area, containing over one-half of the section membership. The Southwest Branch is composed of thirteen counties in the south central and southwestern part of the state and has over one quarter of the members. The Fox River Valley Branch is composed of twenty counties in the northeastern part of the state located around the city of Green Bay. The Northwest Branch is composed of twenty-six counties in the north central and northwestern part of the state centered around the City of Eau Claire. It is the largest branch by area but the smallest by membership. The branches were formed to better serve the members and provide increased local activity. Each branch has its own constitution, bylaws, and officers and holds regular monthly meetings. All members are assigned to their respective branch based on the county of their mailing address.

ASCE Wisconsin Section
<http://sections.asce.org/wisconsin-section>

The Wisconsin Section is widely recognized by the national office as a very active and prominent group and has often been honored with ASCE's Outstanding Large Section Award. A number of section members serve on national professional and technical committees. The affairs of the Wisconsin Section are vested in and governed by the Section Board of Directors composed of officers, directors at-large from the section area as a whole, and one director from each branch.

Section and Branch Histories

The ASCE Wisconsin Section was originally organized as the Milwaukee Section. The Milwaukee Section started on March 20, 1923, when eleven members of ASCE got together to discuss the feasibility of forming a section. Temporary officers were elected, committees appointed, other members notified, and a constitution drawn up. With a few suggested amendments, the Section was approved by the ASCE Board of Directors meeting in New Orleans on April 16, 1923. These amendments were adopted, and subsequently on February 5, 1924, the permanent constitution was established, officers were elected, and twenty-three members were enrolled. On May 20, 1924, seven more members joined. Several meetings were held jointly with the Engineers and Scientists of Milwaukee (ESM) and in September 1926, a contract was signed affiliating the two groups. Meetings of the Section were held in various locations in the city. When ESM purchased a building at 3112 West Highland Avenue, most meetings were then held at the ESM Building. In April 1938, the Milwaukee Section changed its name to the Wisconsin Section.

Until 1962, the officers consisted of president, first and second vice-presidents, and a secretary-treasurer. In 1962, the latter offices were separated. In 1969, the office of president-elect was created, replacing one of the vice-presidents.

As mentioned, four branches have been established—Madison in 1962, Fox River Valley in 1966, Northwest in 1974, and Southeast in 1977. In 1995, the Madison Branch was renamed the Southwest Branch to more accurately indicate the Branch membership. There are six student chapters in the Section located at the University of Wisconsin-Madison (established in 1921), University of Wisconsin-Platteville (established in 1967), University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee (established in 1970), Marquette University (established in 1923), Milwaukee School of Engineering (established in 1991), and University of Wisconsin-Green Bay (established in 2020). Annually, awards are made to the outstanding senior student members of each student chapter.

The Section has fourteen standing committees and six technical committees/institute chapters whose duties and scopes are outlined elsewhere. Committees of the Section also work with and advise the student chapters. The Board of Directors assigns its members to maintain contact with these committees. These committees report their activities and accomplishments periodically to the Board.

National Recognition of Members

Under ASCE's prior governance system, the Wisconsin Section originally provided delegates to sit on the District 7 Council. Since 1914 seven members of our section have served as director of District 7. In 1982, the Section was transferred to District 8. Four section members, Don Dupies, Luther Graef, Jeff Russell, and Tom Walther, have served as directors of District 8 and the present Region 3. Under current governance, the Wisconsin Section is represented on the Region 3 Board of Governors by Carl Sutter.

Four vice-presidents have been from the Wisconsin Section. The Section has also had three of its members serve as president of ASCE:

Daniel W. Mead (1934–37)

Charles W. Yoder (1973–74)

Luther Graef (1997–98)

ASCE presents several annual awards at a national level. Many members of the Wisconsin Section have been recipients of these awards and are listed in this Yearbook.

STEM Forward “Engineer of the Year” and “Young Engineer of the Year” Recipients

The Milwaukee Council of Engineering and Scientific Societies, then Engineers and Scientists of Milwaukee (ESM) have since 1953 annually designated an outstanding engineer as “Engineer of the Year,” making this award at a dinner meeting in February during Engineer’s Week. In the early 1990s, ESM broadened its membership focus to include STEM education and youth outreach and became STEM Forward. In 2000, ESM added an additional honor for an outstanding engineer for those under forty years as “Young Engineer of the Year.” Members of the Wisconsin Section who have been recipients of the “Engineer of the Year” honor include Robert Johnson, Lloyd Knapp, Sam Gates, Herb Goetsch, Al Striegl, Joe Looper, Ray Kipp, Ed Korpady, Charles Yoder, Hank Wildschut, Bill Murphy, Luther Graef, Len Anhalt, Dave Kuemmel, Kurt Bauer, Dave Kluge, Mike Paddock, Richard Smith, Richard Bub, John L. Goetter, Laurie Parsons, and John Kissinger. Members of the Wisconsin Section who have been recipients of the “Young Engineer of the Year” honor include Jennifer Wright, Christopher Foley, Bridget Henk, Jared Wendt, Ken Mika, and Kyle Bareither.

Outstanding Civil Engineering Achievements

In 1967, the Wisconsin Section of ASCE began making awards for the “Outstanding Civil Engineering Achievement.” In 1987, the awards program was expanded to three categories and in 2000 to four. Category A is for projects with construction costs of less than $2 million, Category B for projects with construction costs of $2 to $10 million, Category C for projects with construction costs of $10 to $20 million, and Category D for projects with construction costs greater than $20 million. The Section has the option to nominate one or more winners in each of the categories and to name one particular project in any category as the national Outstanding Civil Engineering Achievement (OCEA). The Milwaukee Art Museum Addition was nominated for and won the national OCEA Award in 2003.

The Section’s other awards include the Distinguished Service Award of the Year, The Young Civil Engineer of the Year, and Engineer’s Merit Awards for Engineers in Education, Consulting Practice, Government Service, and Private Practice. The list of recipients of these awards is published in the Yearbook.

National Historical Civil Engineering Landmarks

The Historic Civil Engineering Landmark (NHCEL) program recognizes historically significant civil engineering projects, structures, and sites.

In 1974 ASCE designated the Milwaukee Metropolitan Sewage Treatment Plant as a National Historical Civil Engineering Landmark and on August 29, 1974, Charles W. Yoder, National President, presented a bronze plaque to the Metropolitan Sewage Commission. It was accepted by Raymond D. Leary, Chief Engineer and General Manager of the plant. Section President Philip G. Sikes presided at the meeting which was attended by about fifty people, including the members of the Commission, Congressman Clement Zablocki and members of the Wisconsin Section. This was the first such designated landmark in Wisconsin.

In 1977, ASCE, in cooperation with the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers, jointly designated the Vulcan Street Hydro-Electric Plant in Appleton a National Historic Civil, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering Landmark. On September 15, 1977, a bronze plaque was unveiled at a replica of the plant at 807 South Oneida Street, in Appleton, recognizing it as the first Edison hydroelectric central station to serve a system of private and commercial customers in North America. Present at the dedication ceremony were William G. Gibbs, ASCE President-Elect; Ralph Wallace, ASCE Vice-President; Harvey Shebesta, Wisconsin Section President; and officers from ASME, IEEE, and the Wisconsin-Michigan Power Company.

In 2002 ASCE’s History and Heritage Committee designated the Marshall Building, 207 East Buffalo Street, Milwaukee, as a NHCEL. Designed by civil engineer Claude A.P. Turner and constructed in 1906, the Marshall Building is the oldest existing example of flat slab concrete construction in the world. Turner’s flat-slab system differed from previous reinforced concrete construction in that it consisted only of a slab and supporting columns, eliminating the time and expense of formed beams on the underside of the floor. The system was a source of intense debate and controversy when introduced. However, within a few years the method was embraced by the civil engineering community. By 1913 over 1,000 such buildings had been constructed. ASCE national President-Elect Thomas L. Jackson, P.E., F.ASCE, dedicated the building in a ceremony on September 27, 2002, at the Marshall Building entrance.

Professional Registration

The Architects and Engineers Registration Board was established in Wisconsin by statute on July 10, 1931. Leslie Van Hagen, Robert C. Johnson, and James L. Ferebee were the first members of the ASCE Wisconsin Section to be appointed to the Board by the Industrial Commission. Since that time, a member of ASCE has been continuously appointed to this Board of Examiners. On September 5, 1935, the name of the Board was changed to Architects and Professional Engineers Registration Board. Currently, the Board is named the Joint Examining Board of Architects, Landscape Architects, and Professional Engineers.

National Conferences

On July 9-10, 1929, the 59th annual convention of ASCE was held in Milwaukee with a registration of 342. On May 13-17, 1963, the Wisconsin Section was host to the National Meeting on Water Resources. Registration included delegates and students from 42 states and 4 foreign countries. On July 16-20, 1972, the Section hosted a National Meeting, the National Transportation Conference. On June 26-30, 1994, Milwaukee was the site of the National ASCE sponsored International Conference on Marinas, Parks, and Recreation Developments. On June 20-24, 2002, Madison was the site of the ASCE 150th Anniversary Student Chapter National Conference.

Meetings

At the earlier regular Milwaukee section meetings, various subjects were presented by well-qualified speakers. Subjects included, of course, technical engineering topics often presented by the members, discussions of new products, and new methods of construction. Speakers on banking, legislation, unionism, legal questions, and others broadened the scope of the meetings.

Often an afternoon tour of a project was followed by the evening dinner meeting. Tours were conducted through many industrial plants such as Allis-Chalmers, Bucyrus-Erie, Marquette Cement, and Wisconsin Bridge and Iron Works. Construction projects were toured, such as the Greek Orthodox Church, the Mitchell Park Domes, the Harbor Bridge, Marine National Bank Building, and the First Wisconsin Tower. Among national laboratories visited were the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, the Paper Institute at Appleton, and the Portland Cement Association Laboratory at Skokie, Illinois. Other special events included Ladies' Night meetings usually held in May and family outings in late August. With the formation branches within the section, meetings and special events are now scheduled on a branch basis with only Section meetings being the annual meeting in the fall and the technical conference in spring.

The Section's annual meeting was held each December until 1963, when it was changed to September at the same time that the fiscal year was changed to run from October 1 to September 30. Since 1971, the annual meeting has been an all-day affair that includes technical sessions, timely topics of the day, and award presentations. The spring technical conferences started in the late 1980s, are either afternoon and early evening meetings or all-day meetings, and are usually held in March.

Younger Members

Younger Member Groups have been established in the Southeast Branch, Southwest Branch, and the Fox River Valley Branch to supplement section and branch functions with programs that are particularly designed for members age 35 and under. They have established themselves as vibrant groups with their own officers and social programs.

Newsletter

The section newsletter started in 1958 as means of communication and contact with the membership. It contains information on recent and upcoming Section activities, including the Section Board Meetings, as well as branch meetings. It also contains the president's column and many other items of interest. Each branch also publishes a newsletter. Around 2007, the Section began sending some of the newsletters electronically as email messages. The Section now sends all newsletters electronically.

Web Site

The section web site was established in 2000 to supplement the newsletter and to allow dissemination of section information to members via the Internet. Similar to the newsletter, it contains information on recent and upcoming section activities, a list of all committees and their members and a library of minutes from Board of Directors meetings. The web site underwent a major updating in 2010, and again in 2018. The Section web site is located at <http://sections.asce.org/wisconsin-section/>.

The Southeast, Southwest, Northwest and Fox River Valley Branches, as well as the Marquette University, Milwaukee School of Engineering, University of Wisconsin-Madison, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, and University of Wisconsin-Platteville Student Chapters, have also established individual web sites:

National Historic Civil Engineering Landmarks in Wisconsin

The Historic Civil Engineering Landmark Program recognizes historically significant civil engineering projects, structures, and sites. Three projects in Wisconsin have been recognized as landmarks.

Milwaukee Metropolitan Sewage Treatment Plant, Milwaukee

Started in 1919, this is America's earliest large-scale activated sludge-type municipal sewage treatment plant. Because activated sludge proved to be a more successful method of environmental recycling, this plant was a major improvement over other contemporary treatment methods and an advance in municipal sanitary engineering. Many other municipalities have adopted its system of sewage treatment. The activated sludge process was selected because studies at the experimental station indicated better clarification, bacterial removal, solids removal, freedom from nuisance (odors for example), rate of purification per unit area, and the opportunity to use the water sludge in the production of fertilizer. The first sewage treatment plant, located on Jones Island, was designed to treat 85 million gallons of sewage daily. It began treating waste in 1925. The plant was expanded to treat an additional 115 million gallons of sewage daily and was put into operation on December 3, 1935.

Designated in 1974.

Vulcan Street Plant, Appleton

When it began operation in September 1882, this plant was the first Edison hydroelectric central station to serve a system of private and commercial customers in North America. This project was the beginning of cooperation among civil, mechanical, and electrical engineers to provide power for the United States. The Vulcan Street Plant was unique in linking a relatively sophisticated water-supply system consisting of flumes, wooden penstocks, and head-gate controls installed to regulate the water pressure powering the plant's turbines with the ongoing development of Edison generating systems to successfully demonstrate the practical application of water power in generating electrical power.

Designated jointly with the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Institute of Electrical and Electronic Engineers in 1977.

Marshall Building, Milwaukee

A pioneer of reinforced concrete construction, Claude A.P. Turner designed the Marshall Building's structure. It is the oldest extant example of Turner's "mushroom" flat-slab system, which transformed the design and construction of reinforced concrete floors worldwide.

Designated in 2002.

Past Wisconsin Section Outstanding Civil Engineering Achievement Awards

These awards recognized civil engineering achievements for projects located within the state of Wisconsin. The awards are given for the achievement, not to an individual, so that the many engineers who have worked on the particular projects are recognized as contributors. The construction cost of the project is considered only to categorize the entries. The project categories are currently defined as follows:

Category A, construction cost under $2,000,000

Category B, construction cost over $2,000,000 and under $10,000,000

Category C, construction cost over $10,000,000 and under $20,000,000

Category D, construction cost over $20,000,000

Nominations must be submitted to the Wisconsin Section Secretary not later than June 1 of the calendar year covering the achievement award.
